Knowledge-Based

Based on 175 years of research and claims experience, the online training courses help educate your employees on the common loss drivers to your business. By gaining a better understanding of the hazards, users are more capable of executing property loss prevention functions. These courses have a dual benefit, by helping to accelerate risk improvement and lower your long-term cost of risk.

The training modules are developed in a way to engage the user through course interaction and knowledge checks. This enables you to:

- Track user progress
- Measure property loss prevention awareness of those in charge of protecting your properties.
- Implement property loss prevention modules into your internal training curriculum.

Client-Focused

The suite of online training courses has been designed for a variety of audiences in order to meet your varying needs. It includes a “Property Protection Podcast Series” that provides high-level information regarding topics ranging from “Hot Work” to “Reducing Flood Risks.”

In addition, more than a dozen in-depth courses on topics such as “Planning for Emergencies” and “Handling Flammable Liquid” provide specific learning opportunities for individuals routinely responsible for protecting your property from loss.

Our experience has also taught us that a considerable amount of property loss is caused by outside contractors. While contractors often carry their own insurance, a loss at your property can cause your business an unwanted interruption. All of the courses on Affiliated FM’s training site are available to the contractors hired to work at your properties.

Innovative

New technology and products can create new hazards for your business. Likewise, our experience and research regarding property loss prevention continues to evolve. As our knowledge base continues to grow, so will our course offerings. This ensures you have the most recent property loss prevention techniques available at your fingertips.
